Woombye's new Main Street

AFTER 136 years, Woombye's main street has evolved from a staging depot during the gold rush to a much-loved township.

And now Sunshine Coast Council has revealed the final design of the town's main street and it's living up to its golden history.

Sunshine Coast Council Division 5 Councillor Winston Johnston said he was excited to deliver a design that enhanced the town's heritage.

"Woombye derived its name from the local Aboriginal word 'wombai', which refers both to the black myrtle tree and the axe handle made from its wood, then it was called Middle Camp, then Cobb's Camp in 1885 before becoming the town we know today," Cr Johnston said.

"Woombye is a very enticing hinterland town and I think these qualities are even more prominent in the streetscape design – a design which was very much community developed and inspired."

Council has been working with residents, businesses, community groups and visitors since November last year to bring the vision to life.

"The final concept design has been developed and expanded from community consultation which highlighted strong support for an attractive town centre, improved pedestrian experience and parking, and sharing Woombye's story through art.

"I'm proud to see the final design embody the community's values which deliver social, economic and sustainable benefits for locals and businesses in Woombye."

Shady street trees and garden beds will be planted to cool the footpath, beautify and extend the green, leafy look and feel, to the west of the town centre. The design also highlights a pedestrian friendly street by improving footpaths and crossings, making it easier to cross the street, slowing traffic and improving access for all abilities. Convenient and available parking close to the shops was a strong priority for the community.

"The final concept design is a balance between maintaining car parking and improving the experience of residents and visitors," Cr Johnston said. "We have reduced some of the garden beds to include more parking on Blackall Street and are investigating the permitted parking duration to improve turnover for adjacent businesses.

"The project team will also investigate parking spaces on Wakefield Street and add two more spaces to Hill Street."

Number 10 turns up the volume on music scene

A Nambour business has announced ambitious plans to transform part of their Bury Street warehouse into the Sunshine Coast's newest live-music venue with the support of a $53,368 Federal Government Grant.

Construction is underway on the 300 square meter venue, 'Number 10', which will include a large garden bar for acoustic performances, an indoor bar and entertainment area and a kitchen specialising in pizza and crepes.

Owners Phil Turvey and Justine Hemmings are trying to re-energise a major building and reinvigorate the music scene under Nambour CBD's Special Entertainment Precinct status. Number 10 is part of the footprint of Big Audio Live in the old Bi-Rite – 1200 square metre premises fronting both Currie and Bury Streets – which had stood vacant for 5 years.

Federal Member for Fairfax Ted O'Brien said the funding boost was not just a major win for Nambour, but a real showstopper for the live-music sector on the Sunshine Coast.

"Nambour remains the soul of the Sunshine Coast and 'Number 10' is going to make sure that that soul is brought to life for the future and the Federal Government is delighted to be contributing," Mr O'Brien said.

"The stage is set for Nambour to amplify its reputation as a live-music and arts hub on the Sunshine Coast.

"It's no secret that the past two years have been incredibly difficult for the live-music industry, but today's announcement is another sign that the music is back.

"I am delighted to support Phil and his new venture which will provide so many opportunities for the local music scene."

Big Audio will be the first venue to open in Nambour under Council's Special Entertainment Precinct regulations which means the business is exempt from the amplified music noise requirements of the Queensland Government's liquor licensing laws.

"This is a gamechanger for us, and it moves us so much further down the track," said Mr Turvey. "We hope to be a flagship and we hope other businesses will follow because we need the nightlife in Nambour to boost our economy here.

"The grant covers 84 lunch-time shows for original Australian content. They'll do a two-hour set every lunch time, for three months from April on.

"This venue will be all about providing a platform for local original music to thrive on the Sunshine Coast.

"Unfortunately, there are not a lot of live music venues left on the Coast, despite the public and the industry screaming out for more options.

"That's why we are so excited to open our doors early next year and plug live-music straight back into the lives of locals in an effort to bring a vibrant night time economy to Nambour."

Big Audio will feature everything from acoustic sets, blues, country and rock 'n' roll to cover bands and Sunday sessions.

With over 20 years' experience in the industry, including long-time support of the Woodford Folk Festival, Mr Turvey says he has tapped into what people want and cannot wait to deliver it.

"I know what entertains people because I've seen what people like and what flavour to put out there" Mr Turvey said.

"That's what this venue is all about – entertainment."

Heritage trail still to come

Cr Johnston said he was looking forward to working with the Woombye Community and Business Association to create a heritage trail through town and add some artwork in front of the School of Arts Hall to celebrate Woombye's heritage.

Council has allocated $1.55 million to deliver the streetscape improvements. Construction is scheduled to take place mid-2022. Council will keep the community updated on progress.

For more information about Woombye Street-scaping process please visit council's website: haveyoursay.sunshinecoast.qld.gov.au/woombye-placemaking

How plans will create an attractive and vibrant town

- Plant shady street trees, lawn and garden beds to enhance the existing picturesque country town look and feel, specifically at the western-end of Blackall Street
- Create a central space for people to gather in front of the School of Arts Hall
- Support the enjoyment of the street with more essentials like seating, drinking fountains, rubbish bins, dog leash posts and water bowls throughout
- Encourage outdoor dining to support local businesses towards the western end of the street

- Investigate art work on the School of Arts Hall
- Upgrade existing raised planters with materials and species in keeping with Woombye's country town look and feel.

How to tell Woombye's Story

- Add vibrancy and interest with a potential artwork and interpretive elements inspired by Woombye's heritage in front of the School of Arts Hall.
- Collaborate with the Woombye Community and Business Association in the creation of a heritage trail.

How to improve pedestrian experience and provide convenient parking

- Plant shady street trees and garden beds to cool the footpath, beautify and extend the green, leafy look and feel
- Placement of a new raised crossing to improve access to parking at Hill Street and slow traffic to the town centre
- Raise the existing pedestrian crossing to improve safety and slow traffic
- Install a road hump on Blackall Street to slow traffic approaching the pedestrian crossing and Wakefield Street, improving safety
- Placement of seven new car parks on lower Blackall Street.

The new look will feature reduced road width and increased community green space.

New look for WCBA website as membership grows

WOOMBYE Community and Business Association's website has a new look and the local organisation is encouraging members and anyone interested in joining to check out the refresh.

WCBA President Debbie Kimber said the revamp of www.woombye.com.au reflected new branding and included more categories to accommodate a more diverse mix of businesses.

"We added some new categories including 'Artisan Food Producers', 'Breweries & Distilleries', 'Retro, Craft & Creative', 'Learning' and 'Digital, Graphics Web & Print'," she said.

"The aim of the website is to raise a greater awareness for locals and visitors searching for local businesses, community groups and sporting clubs," said WCBA Vice-President Grant Palethorpe.

Mr Palethorpe said WCBA Membership, including the website listing, was only $20 annually. Each listing also provides live links to a member's website and social media platforms.

The WCBA currently has 76 business listings plus another 22 community groups and sporting clubs.

Choir to present Christmas in Maleny at St Georges

FOLLOWING a spectacular performance of Handel's Messiah recently, a smaller segment of Kim Kirkman's Inspiration choir will again present the annual Christmas concert in St Georges Anglican Church, 2 Walker Drive Maleny, on December 5 at 3pm. The concert will also feature the Caloundra Community Choir.

More than 400 patrons gave the Messiah a standing ovation and sustained applause. St George's Priest-in-charge Revd Deb Bird said it was a privilege to have them perform.

"We are delighted that Kim Kirkman has agreed, once again, to present our final concert for the year, Christmas in Maleny, on December 5. St Georges-in-the-Hills concert series has taken a hit, like everything else, with the pandemic, but it has been a popular series for a niche market.

"There are so many music lovers who can't access concerts in the city and our series gives them an hour and a half of listening pleasure in beautiful surroundings, at a reasonable hour and even to have some refreshments and a chat afterwards."

Kim Kirkman said he enjoys the annual Christmas concert at St Georges: "It's all very casual, the audience are enthusiastic with the singalong segments, and we will have the favourites, Silent Night, Hark the Herald Angels Sing, and all the well-loved Christmas songs."

► Tickets are $20 from www.trybooking.com/BVDYT or phone Susan Myring on 0407953225.

Andrew Nguyen and Sofia Du have been heartened by the welcome they have received. And they are offering phone repair services through the agency.

New faces at Nambour News

NAMBOUR locals will by now have seen the new faces at the Nambour News 'N Casket Agency in Currie Street.

Andrew Nguyen and Sofia Du have taken over the agency and have been heartened by the welcome they have received.

"We have lived in Perth and Sydney, but when we came to Nambour, the beautiful weather and the friendliness of the people reminded me of my hometown," said Andrew.

"I felt like I was coming home. We have been blown away by how lovely our customers are. It's a real bonus."

The agency provides newspaper and magazine delivery, stationary, printer cartridges, beautiful greeting cards and gifts, Lottery and tobacco products, GoCard and phone top-ups and phone repairs and accessories.

"Phones are actually my specialty," Andrew said. "I am an electrical engineer by trade and have been repairing phones for more than 8 years."

"I have another technician working with me and together we have 15 years of experience in this field. In fact, when Telstra are not able to help people sort their phones out, they tend to refer them to me!

"I have a lot of experience helping people set up their phones and I have found that setting up smartphones can be a frustrating experience, particularly for elderly people, or those who don't have a lot of confidence with technology. I am always more than happy to help. It is a big relief for people to get their contacts and apps updated and their phones running smoothly."

"I am able to offer the phone services at the best prices because I have incorporated that aspect of the business into the newsagency, so I only have one set of overheads. It makes a high quality phone repair service extremely affordable. My customers know that they can trust me to get the job done properly for them."

Andrew and Sofia are planning to bring new products into the shop as well as ongoing promotions for their customers.

"We are definitely looking forward to serving our current customers and meeting some new ones as well."

► Nambour News 'N Casket Agency is at Shop 28, 52-54 Currie Street Nambour.

Models Marie Regazzolli, Sandra Farrell and Pauline Gray.

Excitement builds as Fashion Show nears

THERE'S a sense of excitement at Drop-In & Op Shop this week as the volunteers put together a showcase of fashions for the festive season.

Models from size 8 to 18 have tried their outfits and the perfect accessories have been selected ready to present to the public this Saturday afternoon. Unlike a regular fashion boutique, Op Shops usually have only one of any particular item, but it is interesting how much choice there is across the store.

"Part of the allure of op shopping is finding that treasure," volunteer Sandra Farrell said.

"It is surprising that such a small Op Shop as ours can have such a variety of great labels at any given time. On Saturday afternoon we will be showing designers like Liz Davenport and Morrison along with TS, Black Pepper, Table Eight and more."

Prices are very affordable and EFTPOS is available.

► Commencing at 2pm Saturday November 27 with Devonshire Tea, Festive Fashion Showcase will be presented in the Atrium Foyer, Sanctuary Park Church of Christ, 22 National Park Road, Nambour. Entry is $15.

Couple takes Unitywater to court to fight water bill

A Nambour couple is taking Unitywater to court over a water bill that was ten times the normal amount.

Bob and Lorraine Roberts said their last water bill from May rose from the usual $300 to $3000 — or about 680,000 litres of water.

"Unity water says we must have left a garden hose turned on," said Bob. "But we had a leak detector check, and there were no leaks in the system at all. Our plumber calculated that the volume of water we have supposedly used (680,000 litres) would have to have poured out of a tap for three and a half to four and a half weeks — full on day and night — to deliver so much water."

Bob said it was inconceivable that they would not have noticed such a flow.

"There have been no signs of erosion or abundance of growth in the only area such a hose lies," he said.

"Besides, it is on the bank just by our bedroom window and water would have flowed to our back door. We may even have heard it flowing."

Bob said he questioned the bill and asked Unity water several times to visit their home and discuss the situation "and convince us that such a flow could have occurred".

"Unitywater have refused to do that and have been insultingly arrogant. We are aged pensioners, long standing customers and have lived here for nearly 40 years."

"They just say 'that is what the meter says and you must pay'."

Bob said Unity Water have refused to disclose any information about similar cases in the area or of any work on the supply line, that might have caused a surge. The meter is mechanical and does not have a surge protector fitted.

"I have found part of an article reporting a similar case — bill 10 times the usual amount — that was in our Rosemount area. That was 10 years ago and the then-boss of Unitywater admitted that meter readings were not always correct and errors did occur in billing. At the time of that case there were 180 customers questioning their water bills from Unity Water!"

'They have all the power to exploit vulnerable customers, especially the elderly and infirm. This is a very stressful business for us.'

The matter has now escalated to the Queensland Civil and Administrative Tribunal (QCAT) and the case comes up on December 8 at the Maroochydore Magistrate's Court.

"We have taken the matter to the QCAT level on principal," said Bob. "We want more transparency and honesty from a company that is a monopoly and has to please share holders. They preach they are 'customer oriented' and yet they do this. They have all the power to exploit vulnerable customers, especially the elderly and infirm. This is a very stressful business for us."

► Bob said he would like to hear from anyone who has experienced, or is currently having, a billing dispute with Unitywater. Contact Bob and Lorraine at robertsbob@optusnet.com.au.

Pam & Steve Groom of Nambour Upholstery ... the key to business longevity is treating every customer like you would like to be treated yourself.

Upholstery business has been part of the fabric of Nambour for 35 years

STEVE and Pam Groom of Nambour Upholstery started with just two staff in Howard Street 35 years ago.

Now they employ 12 people in a busy showroom in Coronation Avenue. "We don't brag but there wouldn't be any one else like us on the Coast," said Steve as a bevy of upholsterers hummed around the workshop.

"I think we both have a great sense of achievement if we look back on the past 35 years. Our original vision was to own it for six years and yet here we are today."

Pam said the most rewarding aspect of the job was working with clients to breathe new life into precious furniture that had seen better days. "I just love the transformation of things that come in pretty ordinary and go out looking like wow," she said. "I feel very proud when people go out really satisfied with a piece we've revived."

"You have to work with each customer and educate them sometimes to make sure their expectations match what is possible. So we develop quite a relationship in order to balance everyone's individual needs."

The business was established in 1979 and Steve and Pam arrived on November 17, 1986.

Steve said the key to business longevity was treating every customer like you would like to be treated yourself.

"We've just done a chair for a favourite customer of ours and she's over the moon," he said. "I remember the day we started and Penny was our first customer and we're still doing work for her 35 years later. To be able to retain that level of relationship for that long is very satisfying to us."

► Nambour Upholstery specialise in furniture upholstery services. They manufacture pieces such as bedheads, ottomans and blanket boxes and can repair damaged furniture. The workshop, opposite the Showgrounds entrance, carries a wide range of fabrics, leathers, vinyls, remnants, textiles & foams. Phone 07 5441 6764 or email info@nambourupholstery.com.au.

Kelly Burton and Mick Dan have fought back from disaster with two awards for their business, Good Harvest Organic Farm.

Arson-attacked farmers turn tables with two awards

ALMOST exactly five years ago, Sunshine Coast hinterland organic farmers Mick Dan and Kelly Burton lost their organic shop to an arson attack. But that tragedy turned to triumph last weekend with the business duo scooping a national and local business award within 24 hours.

The Good Harvest Organic Farm owners were finalists for four "Australia Organic Industry Awards" last Friday with Mick winning the coveted "Farmer of the Year".

Mick said he was honoured to be recognised by his peers in such a collaborative industry, but his win would not be possible without the support of his partner Kelly, daughter Alex and a strong team of employees.

"Our entire team at Good Harvest Organic Farm are proud to work in a value-based industry and provide healthy organic produce for their community," he said.

"We also want to thank our Good Harvest customers and community for supporting us through the good times and the tough times - it truly is what inspires us to keep going and growing!

One night later Good Harvest won the Food and Agribusiness Category - Large Employer Award, at the Annual Sunshine Coast Business Awards. "We couldn't believe it when we heard our name announced!" said Kelly. "It still feels like a dream! We are so truly honoured to be recognised amongst such an inspiring list of businesses, not just in our category, but across the many categories awarded," she said.

"When our shop was destroyed by fire over five years ago, we could not have imagined how much of a positive influence this could have on our purpose and direction.

"We also hope it will encourage other young farmers to get in there and give it a go! The organic farming community here on the Coast is so collaborative, and there is such a strong future for organic farming and food production."

Her step-mother the Queen however, is also searching for the casket in order to claim the powers for herself.

Along the way the Princess meets up with some long lost characters from Fairy Tales and Rhymes, so come along and meet them all and find out who will open the casket. We look forward to seeing you.

Nicki Farrell and Vicki Oliver encourage kids to climb trees, build rafts and explore the forest.

The alternative school that embraces adventure, wins major business award

THE Wildlings Forest School, run in the open-air muddy banks of Petrie Creek at Burnside is a place where students can, quite literally, run wild.

The Nambour enterprise that puts dirt back into childhood and encourages risky play is striking a chord with parents looking for an antidote to mainstream education. And on Saturday November 13 it attracted the attention of the business community when it won the Education & Training Category at the Sunshine Coast Business Awards.

Founders Nicki Farrell and Vicki Oliver encourage kids to climb trees, explore the forest and cover themselves from head to toe in mud – all things that may be forbidden at a mainstream school.

"We encourage our children to use hand tools such as pen knives, bow saws and hand drills and teach them how to whittle and light fires from as early as they show interest," said Nicki.

"We believe children are and have always been, capable and competent human beings. It's our own perception of risk as adults that is the real issue of getting children back outdoors.

"Think about what we all used to do as children. Children are still capable of doing these things, perhaps even more so because they're better risk assessors. What's the difference for example between giving a child a whittling knife or a kitchen knife or scissors to use? How is shallow creek different to their bathtub at home? How is playing with a stick different to using a sharp pencil?"

Nicki and Vicki say getting kids outdoors has many benefits in addition to exercise, such as improved attitudes and behaviour, better social interactions, creativity and resilience. Allowing children to follow their own innate curiosity, leads to learning outcomes of equal, or greater importance, than in a classroom.

"If we remove the risk management side of life for children, they never learn how to navigate the real world on their own. They may doubt their own decision making skills," said Vicki.

"Some kids we've met have never touched mud or walked or gone a walk through a forest – here on the Sunshine Coast. They have no muscle tone, their bodies have no true live experience. Society has become scared of letting children be children. Our aim as a business is simply to be a place where kids can be kids. Where we put the dirt back in to childhood."

'Just let them play'

"So if you want to help improve your child's chances of academic success let them go outside, let them play in risky – we prefer the term adventurous ways – let them use real tools, let them use their outside voices, let them get muddy. Just let them play," said Nicki.

► The school offers different programs exploring a range of methods of engaging children (from babies to 12 year-olds) in nature. For more information go to www.wildlingsforest-school.com

A comment on Facebook asked the owners to "please keep the Golden Fleece sign for the town".

Maleny's iconic Watson's Garage closure a sign of the times, says owner

A well known Maleny service station, Watson's Garage announced its closure on Friday, November 12.

"It is with great sadness after over 60 years of trade Watson's Garage, Maleny, will be closed today," a notice on the bowser says.

The new owners also announced the closure on Facebook saying they would like to thank the Maleny community for all of their support over the years.

"We regret that this decision has to be made, however progress has forced our hand," they said, in possible reference to the new Mobil service station in Bunya Street.

"To all our suppliers and the community once again, we are sorry but we thank you.

"Over many years of service and contribution we also would like to thank the staff.

"We look forward to sharing new and exciting ventures in this location."

Watson's Garage, Maleny was listed for lease earlier this year, closed its doors on Friday, November 12.

Savills Sunshine Coast had the property listed for rent as an "iconic, character-filled" service station.

A comment on Facebook asked the owners to "please keep the Golden Fleece sign for the town".

Another lamented the loss of independent businesses from town: "Gone are the days of small independent suppliers: Nagy's, The Farmers' Coop, The Farm Barn, and now Watson's".

The Watson family had sold the service station some years ago. A sign on the front of the building reads "Est 1964", which would make the business 57 years old.

No dance experience needed at 'Awake Movement' studio

FOUNDER of Awake Movement, a new Dance Studio in Nambour, Abigail Wake has worked in Los Angeles with entertainers like Kelly Rowland and Kelly Clarkson.

But it was only after moving to Australia that she realised her passion for dance extended to teaching children and adults of all abilities.

Now, as well as her regular classes at Nambour, Gunalda and Eumundi, Abigail has staged classes for children and adults of all abilities, giving everyone a place to call home.

"I realised there was no space that was welcoming and supportive and that helped people with more high level challenges feel like they belonged. And so I decided to change that," said Abigail.

"I taught Compass special needs children who are on the spectrum. I didn't for one second allow anyone to feel they weren't safe and didn't belong. The world does that enough. To create a home for everyone to be seen, heard and felt, is what brings me true joy.

"It's that joy that we want everyone we teach to be able to feel, because dance heals, dance unifies us, dance sets us free, no matter who you are, where you come from."

Abigail said she planned workshops, events and classes to help people of all dance abilities discover themselves and broaden their horizons through dance.

"We're right across from Compass in C-Square," she said. "This studio encourages people to become one with their bodies. No dance experience is necessary and everyone is welcome. You will be guided to move, sweat and have a ton of fun through movement.

"Come try out some classes, hire the space for a creative event, or just come say hello," Abigail said. "We are really excited about bringing this

Tye Naismith .. "The majority of our products are handcrafted by local people with disabilities who attend one of the many Compass Institute Campuses".

Purchase with purpose: New store sells gifts crafted by people with disabilities

LOCATED in the heart of Nambour at C-Square, Wabi Sabi Creations sells hand-crafted pieces made with love, by people with disabilities.

The brand new Compass social enterprise opened in August 2021 and sells pieces by Compass Campus trainees offering shoppers a place to "purchase with purpose" for their Christmas gifts.

"The location is terrific and is proving to be a wonderful space to showcase the work of our talented Trainees," said Team Leader, Tye Naismith.

The store was born out of a vision to showcase to the world the incredible talents that people with disabilities have. In addition to the core learning and development curricula, each of the Compass Campuses offers creative programs that allow their Trainees to explore and express their unique talents creating a range of products.

Wabi Sabi Creations offers a fit-for-purpose outlet where these unique and beautiful pieces can be showcased and sold to the public, with all proceeds going back into Compass to further support their programs and provide more life changing opportunities for individuals living with a disability.

"Wabi Sabi ('wahbee - sahbee') is a Japanese concept that encourages us to find beauty in every aspect of imperfection in nature," Tye said.

"It is a beautiful way to describe what is natural and pure and to acknowledge the exquisite nature of any substance or being in its most natural, raw and inherently imperfect form.

"It is in this essence that our products have been brought to life.

"We are tremendously proud of the products our trainees have made and they are now available for purchase in the shop," Tye said. "There are beautiful homewares and plants, fresh products from the farm, candles, pottery, screen printed tea towels and scarves, cheese boards, and jams, honey, chutneys and pickles.

"In the countdown to Christmas, there are also Christmas decorations, calendars and Christmas cards. The workmanship and care that goes into all of the products is second to none. The majority of our products are handcrafted by local people with disabilities who attend one of the many Compass Institute Campuses. They are made with absolute love and care and a desire to give back to the community."

► Wabi Sabi is at C-Square, 52-64 Currie St, Nambour

Yandina School of Arts hosts renowned artist

YANDINA School of Arts is hosting international artist and Blooms painting instructor Jacqueline Coates from eve of Dec 2 to Dec 6 for a 4-and-a-half-day workshop. All levels welcome from beginners to experienced. Jacqueline, a painter with over 30 years' experience, is known for her unique Blooms painting method providing rapid access to beautiful painting results. Beginners are welcome. Jacqueline is based in the Barossa Valley and travels to teach in LA, New Zealand, Australia, and France. Says Jacqueline;

"I fell in love with the Sunshine Coast recently, meeting some lovely local artists on the Noosa Open Studios Art Trail. I stayed in Buderim with a former student & artist who sometimes assists me, Trish Arden.

"Returning home, I felt inspired to host a workshop for students on the Sunshine Coast. It's an inspirational setting. I was thrilled to learn about the Yandina School of Arts with its charming historic hall, and excellent facilities.

"They have kindly made room in the schedule for my Blooms painting workshop. I know my students will love exploring Yandina's bush walks and waterfall, the local heritage architecture, the Saturday market, not to mention the cafes & the famous Yandina pub."

Students will learn to paint acrylics from scratch then paint two large blooms canvases each choosing from roses, peonies, frangipanis, tulips, poppies, iris, fruit, and more.

Karyn Weepers, Vice President of the Yandina School of Arts said it was wonderful to host Jacqueline and her students in Yandina.

"The Yandina School of Arts hosts classes in dance, music, and theatre. Jacqueline adds painting to our arts offerings. We also get to fundraise which helps with the current hall restoration project."

Additionally, Jacqueline has donated a set of fine bone China teacups, teapot and coasters featuring her blooms paintings to raffle.

Free photos with Santa are back at Nambour Plaza

NAMBOUR Plaza will be happily welcoming back Santa Claus this year after last year's hiatus with a brand new, one of a kind Santa set that has been hand crafted by a local retired builder.

"We understand the popularity of the Frozen franchise and we wanted to recreate some of that magic, so this year we have a Frozen themed Santa photo set. We're delighted to be welcoming Santa back to Nambour Plaza to meet families this festive season," said the Centre's Administration and Marketing Manager, Clare Webb.

Santa will return to the Centre from Saturday 4th December and shall be at the centre daily from 10am, until Friday 24th of December.

"We have extra measures in place for Santa photos this year due to Covid-19 rules," said Ms Webb. "When visiting, please maintain social distancing with other families, Santa and his helpers. We ask that you do not sit on Santa's lap, chair or high five Santa. Regular cleaning of the Santa Photo Set will take place between sittings. Please use hand sanitiser and if unwell, please do not attend.

"There is no need to book, however afternoons are generally quieter and the last week is always the busiest.

"We offer one free 6x4 photo which is printed on the spot," Ms Webb explained. "Providing a free Santa photo to all our customers is a great way to encourage the sentiment 'Live Local, Shop Local'. We also have free Letters to Santa available (available while stocks last), for customers having their photo. Just pop them in our mail box near the set ready for him to read before Christmas arrives".

Manager Clare Webb says the scene is set for free photos with Santa at Nambour Plaza.

Jetts Nambour gears up with all new equipment

REGULARS to Jetts Nambour will be eagerly anticipating its re-opening following major renovations which are underway right now.

"The club is undergoing a major renovation from the floor to the ceiling," said co-owner, Jill Bingham. The new Jetts Nambour will be current to the new Generation 4 look, which also includes all new equipment. "It is hectic but very exciting. We can't wait to show our members around when it is done."

This is not the first gym renovation for the gym's new owners, Jill and Warren.

Past students enjoy a trip down memory lane & a delicious morning tea while touring the grounds of Chevallum State School during their Centenary celebrations.

Happy 100th Chevallum State School

FROM humble beginnings in 1921, starting with only 12 students, Chevallum State School has grown to be a successful, vibrant school of nearly 500 learners attracting students and their families from all across the Sunshine Coast.

The school recently celebrated its Centenary year with a special parade, school tours, barbecue, the publication of a book, the creation of a Time Capsule and the unveiling of a specially commissioned artwork.

Students from 1941 and up to the 1970s and 1980s enjoyed a trip down memory lane and many amazing and humorous stories were shared while guests viewed historical displays, toured the grounds and visited classrooms. Seeing staff and students dressed in costume reflecting the Centenary & 1920's theme, added to the occasion as did the centenary inspired student artwork decorating the hall.

Ken and Ann Dickson attended as Ken went to Chevallum in the 1940's. Ken was pleased to find himself mentioned on the Punishment Register in 1944, for "playing about in the creek in canoes on the way home from school". It was good to see the canoe bandit had grown up to be a lovely man.

The Centenary Parade was an outstanding showcase of Chevallum State School - past and present. Memories to be included in our Centenary time capsule were presented via a narrated video clip and The Chevallum Community Choir performed a new school song, written especially for the occasion by teacher Jo Keates.

Dignitaries, guests and delegates were invited to attend the special parade including former Principal Lyn Winch and Jock and Denis Scott who were decedents of the 1921 founding student Arthur Scott.

The P&C's specially-commissioned Centenary Art installation was also unveiled. The art piece "Our Reflection Circle" is a seating area decorated by hand made mosaics, telling the story of Chevallum. It was made by artists Kaye Spierings and Linley Boyle.

One attendee, Jean Sawrey was our oldest guest at 97 years of age, she is a past Chevallum student, and a younger sister of a founding student from 1921!

We appreciate the past while looking to the future and thank all our staff, students and families over the decades for helping to create a caring and nurturing learning environment. Who knows what the next 100 years holds, exciting technological developments, perhaps even robot teachers? Whatever the technology human interaction, parents, teachers, students, will always be at the heart of teaching and building a community of learners

$500 donation goes toward Woombye School library

THE Nambour Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star is a small group of like-minded men and women who follow a tradition of love, friendship and caring for others.

They meet regularly in the Masonic Centre at Woombye and each year they try to donate to a worthwhile local cause.

This year they chose Woombye State School's library.

"The $500 will go towards projects encouraging students to interact with each other while in the library," said Order of the Eastern Star spokesperson Jill Peck.

"We had a delightful time with the school and were so impressed with the care and enthusiasm of all we met while there. Paul Lowik is very proud of the 137-year-old school and its ethics and is a great example to both students and staff."

About The Order of the Eastern Star

The Order of the Eastern Star is non-denominational and non-sectarian but the principles and values shared by members, are based on stories from the Old and New Testament, and are designed to make a profound and lasting impression upon all to whom they are addressed. The centre-piece in every Chapter Room is an Altar. When the Chapter is in session an open Bible rests on top. The Bible is open at Chapter 2 in the Book of Matthew in the Christian Bible. This Chapter relates the story of the first Christmas and the three wise men who travelled to meet and worship the baby Jesus. In that narrative, the wise men followed a bright star in the sky to help them find the birthplace of the baby Jesus. That bright star is called the Eastern Star, and represents the inspiration for the name of our Order.

Garden Expo will continue to bloom in Nambour

Australia's second largest garden show, the Queensland Garden Expo held annually at the Nambour Showgrounds, will now enter negotiations with Sunshine Coast Council to lock in a three-year sponsorship arrangement.

Economy Portfolio Councillor Jason O'Pray said the expo, first held in 1985, was second only to the Melbourne International Flower and Garden Show in terms of size.

"It is estimated that the expo will collectively attract 23,850 exhibitors, speakers, support personnel and attendees from outside the Sunshine Coast, generating more than 44,000 visitor nights per year," Cr O'Pray said.

"It has the potential to offer a real shot in the arm for our tourism industry which is so important to our local economy after a tumultuous couple of years due to the impacts of COVID.

The direct economic benefit from visitor room nights and the spend in the local economy has been conservatively estimated at $9 million.

Community contributions are also of significant value, with more than 30 community clubs benefiting from an estimated $50,000 each year through their involvement.

The Sunshine Coast Events Board, which includes community leaders from a wide range of professions, recommended that council provide sponsorship for the 2022-2024 Queensland Garden Expo events.

The next three day event is scheduled for July 8-10, 2022, and garden expo lovers are encouraged to subscribe to receive event updates at www.qldgardenexpo.com.au or follow on Facebook @qldgardenexpo.

Council moves to rein in Yandina development rush

AT a Council meeting on November 10, Div 10 Cr David Law successfully argued that further amendments to the Sunshine Coast Planning Scheme (2014) for Yandina be put on hold until the new Planning Scheme (2024) comes into force.

A parcel of land at the centre of the issue lies between Steggalls and Brandons Roads and on Ninderry Road near the Spirit House (see map). It was added to Yandina's Urban Footprint in the SEQ Regional Plan (2017) at Council's request following lobbying by landholders.

President of the Yandina and District Community Association (YADCA) Marie Reeve said she supported Councillor Law's action.

"There is already sufficient residential-zoned land to meet demand to 2031 according to Council's Fact sheet 'SEQ Regional Plan Review - Preferred Settlement Pattern 2041'," Ms Reeve said. "Yandina has capacity for more than 500 new dwellings. With a population of 8000 the town is growing at 3 percent per annum. Putting on hold the extra residential development that would occur on the Steggalls Road site will give the Council time to bring the community infrastructure up to a level sufficient to support the existing population and the increase in population that will result from the developments already underway in Yandina."

Ms Reeve said in planned greenfield sites - where provision is made upfront for community infrastructure such as bike and foot paths, parks, playgrounds, schools and utilities - established towns like Yandina have been forced to accept growth from subdivisions and infill developments without commensurate upgrading of community infrastructure.

"Footpaths start and end adjacent to new estates with plenty of missing links," she said. "Bike paths are non-existent except on Farrell Street. The local skate facility and park are in need of an upgrade and parking spaces are already under pressure at busy times. The school has limited space to expand without losing sporting fields and public transport is limited to one bus route between Nambour and Noosa and two trains a day."

Ms Reeve said that people wanted Yandina to retain its pleasant semi-rural lifestyle and preserve the historic village character that had made it an attractive place to live.

"But there has to be upgrading of community infrastructure commensurate with the increase in residential development that has already occurred or is underway," she said.

"The delay in the amendment gives Council time to bring community infrastructure in Yandina up to the standard required for greenfield developments elsewhere on the Sunshine Coast so that it is properly prepared for development such as those now put on hold."

Ms Reeve said millions of dollars had been received from the Infrastructure Levy paid on each new residential property in Yandina but Council's policy has been to spend none of those funds in Yandina.

"Instead directing them to other infrastructure developments on the Sunshine Coast considered to have greater priority than those of the town in which the levy was collected."

Ms Reeve said if living standards and amenity were to be maintained in established towns like Yandina, planning, residential development and infrastructure must be "considered holistically, not in a piecemeal way, from one development application to another".

How to avoid getting stuck in fear and overwhelm ...

by Rochelle Voysey, Rewilded Health

WE live in a changing world, facing uncertainty, and new experiences - and many of us are struggling.

If this is you, know that it's ok to feel stressed out, fearful, overwhelmed, angry, helpless, or just plain numb. It's ok if you're not sure what to do, or don't have all the answers. You're doing the best you can - and that's enough.

What is important is understanding the impact these emotions have on your body, and why you need to be a bit proactive about pulling yourself out of these fear states.

When we perceive a threat in our environment, our nervous system shifts into survival mode.

This is our sympathetic nervous system, aka our fight/flight/fawn mode. Here, we commonly experience emotions such as rage, frustration, panic, anxiety, and fear.

21 artists feature at the Nambour's Old Ambulance Station

A new exhibition has opened at The Old Ambulance Station in Nambour and, in other news, a key member of the gallery team is moving on to new challenges.

MindMe is a group show of varied works from 21 artists, in a wide range of forms including found art installations, painting, photography, and video.

Curator John Waldron says, "MindMe is part of an ongoing collaborative exploration started in 2013.

This exhibition showcases the importance of the arts for mental health, demonstrating how creating and connecting with others can aid in understanding and communicating health issues."

MindMe also marks the last show for John, The Old Ambo's resident curator and expert on all things related to visual arts. At the opening of MindMe, Board President Michael Doneman thanked John for his voluntary work for the gallery over the last eight years.

"John has a remarkably understated way of practically demonstrating the value of the Ambo's exhibition spaces, and his contribution has been a significant element in the Ambo's emerging recognition in our region and beyond," said Michael.

"He combines industry and management capacities with the sensibilities and passion of being an artist and this is a very rare combination.

"His savvy and connectivity have set a benchmark that we'll struggle to reach after his departure."

► MindMe continues at The Old Ambulance Station, 80 Howard St Nambour, until January 22nd. Opening hours are Monday to Saturday 10am until 3pm. The gallery will be closed from Sunday 19 December 2021 until Sunday 9 January 2022.

Curator John Waldron, left, is thanked by Chair Michael Doneman for his contributions to the gallery.

Detail of work by Judy Barrass.

Our bodies respond to these emotions by preparing for imminent danger - increasing blood pressure, heart rate, defensive responses and releasing stress hormones such as adrenaline and cortisol.

This also reduces immune system function (not ideal in the current climate) while suppressing digestion and cognition.

Long-term, being "stuck" in this state interrupts the body's ability to heal, and can lead to many chronic, digestive, and inflammatory conditions.

You can support your nervous system health by:

- Nourishing your body with nutrient-dense soups, stews and slow-cooked meals that are easier for your digestive system to break down and absorb
- Drinking plenty of filtered water to keep your brain and cells hydrated and support detoxification
- Moving your body (swimming, stretching, dancing in the kitchen) to release pent-up energy
- Hugging a loved one or fur friend for 20 seconds or more stimulates oxytocin, a hormone that helps us feel relaxed, safe, and loved
- Deep belly breathing tells our nervous system that our body is "safe" and can switch out of survival mode
- Focusing on what you can control - there are always options, the trick is getting out of your own way long enough to see them.

As always, if you're struggling on your own and need support, reach out. I use a combination of nutrition and lifestyle interventions, kinesiology, energy work and functional testing to support my clients in their health and wellness goals. Perhaps it's time to try something different?

Letters to the Editor

Community Spirit offered when it was most needed

AT a time when businesses have had to cope with the impact of lockdowns some managed to rise above the troubles through their generosity and community spirit. The business I am talking about is Flaxton Gardens, one of Queensland's premier wedding venues.

In July 2020 the Sunshine Coast had its first and longest lockdown. Despite dealing with its own loss in revenue and the intense stress of all the couples having to postpone their weddings, this amazing local business stepped up.

When restrictions were eased, I approached the owners of Flaxton Gardens as I needed a spacious venue to hold my weekly yoga classes on the Range. Never did I expect for them to insist on providing this space free of charge.

When I asked if I could pay, they reiterated that they very generously wanted to offer this for the community, and in turn they felt gratitude to have a sense of connection with the locals, especially as they would often linger afterwards for a coffee or tea.

Sadly, our year at Flaxton Gardens has now come to an end and this divine venue is expanding its events to encompass family reunions, special events and intimate gatherings in the Barrell Room and Main Hall.

But we are forever grateful for them sharing this stunning space with us.

I cannot tell you how many times I and my students would arrive and be reminded of how incredibly fortunate we are to live where we live during these times.

Thankfully, we can still hold our bi-annual sunrise/sunset free community yoga classes on the grassed helipad, overlooking the beautiful Sunshine Coast.

In our final week we celebrated with the Flaxton Gardens team. All of the students personally wrote in cards, we gifted flowers and chocolates to try and express how blessed we felt. For it is this kind of action that creates a ripple effect, that affects us all.

Having their support during this time truly helped me to be able to offer a practice that brings inner peace and calm to my students, at a time when there is so much fear and uncertainty.

For that, I am forever grateful.

— Olivia Besson, Yoga teacher

Is a permanent water diversion on the cards?

I am another resident whose property adjoins the wetland area that was the subject of your article: "Duck Pond sediment control measures an eyesore: resident" (SVGazette, November 10).

Your article does not address a concern that we have about the possible permanent diversion of run-off water away from this wetland.

Council first circulated a 'Project News' leaflet dated October 2020 that defined the scope of works on Project P-H3740 as a 'sediment basin and ephemeral wetland'.

The start of work was delayed when Council was alerted to the fact that hundreds of chestnut-breasted mannikin finches nest every year in the area where the proposed basin was to be dug.

But work finally began and by June 2021 what had been green wetland had been stripped of all vegetation.

Then work came to a halt.

In October I wrote to Council to ask what was happening and received an email and then a phone call from the Project Manager.

He explained that the temporary pipes put in place to prevent run-off water from flowing into the wetland had been expected to dry out the area sufficiently to permit digging the sediment basin and planting native vegetation. However, the wetland hadn't dried out.

It seems there are springs in the wetland that may not have been identified in the preliminary survey.

It was therefore not possible to get equipment into the area to do the planned work.

Moreover, since run-off had begun flowing directly downstream toward the Kolora duck pond without passing through the wetland, water quality in the duck pond had improved - as Cr Winston Johnston states in your article.

What he did not say, however, is that a permanent diversion of water run-off is therefore under consideration.

Those of us residing near this wetland now wonder if such a permanent diversion is part of the revised plan.

More importantly, what effect would a permanent diversion of water run-off away from our wetland have on this important area for both vegetation and local wildlife.

Water quality and revegetation of this wetland must not be compromised in an effort to improve the more publicly visible duck pond area.

In view of Council's failure to get a full assessment of this wetland's water sources prior to beginning the project, we are understandably anxious about the final outcome. We look forward to an updated 'Project News' leaflet and/or a meeting with local residents to provide further information about the Council's revised plans for our wetland.

Mother and daughter create new Nambour real estate team

WITH more than 30 years experience in real estate, the building industry and finance, Vanessa Brunton of VB Real Estate is well placed to help people navigate the property market.

"It's fair to say that in 30 years, I have seen just about everything and continue to love what I do, learning everyday. I have negotiated and sold hundreds of properties," Vanessa said.

Vanessa has been selling real estate in the Nambour & Sunshine Coast Hinterland area for over 11 years, and made the decision recently to start her own agency, VB Real Estate with her daughter Cheyne alongside.

"Cheyne has her real estate license as well as a Cert 3 in Business," said Vanessa. "I have worked in the building industry as well as in finance with Westpac bank, when I was living in Townsville more than 30 years ago. It's where I met my husband of over 30 years," she said.

"We purchased over 50 acres in the Obi Valley 15 years ago and Cheyne started prep at Mapleton State School with my son Josh in Grade 2. It was a wise decision. We love the Sunshine Coast and don't see us ever leaving, it's just a fabulous area to raise a family.

"I feel we offer our clients that little bit extra, and between us, we are really able to help both sellers and buyers to achieve their goals when it comes to real estate. Plus you're working with the owners of a small family boutique real estate business and we are eager to exceed your expectations.

Vanessa said she felt humbled by the numerous Rate my Agent reviews VB Real Estate has received from both buyers and sellers. "This is why we love what we do and I believe that comes naturally when you are passionate," said Vanessa.

VB Real Estate services clients in Nambour, Mapleton, Flaxton, Coes Creek, Burnside, Kureelpa, Kenilworth, Maleny, Woombye, Rosemount and Palmwoods, and as far afield as Gympie. "There are some homes we have sold several times over," said Vanessa.

"I have always been one of those people who love real estate. Outside of this as a career, it is also a passion, my every day. I have had enough experience to have a very clear idea of how best to deliver exceptional service and outcomes which makes for a stress free experience for clients.

"VB Real Estate offers you the full service when selling your unit, residential home, acreage or land," Vanessa said. "We start with professional photography, signboard, online and print marketing (including all social media), preparation and signing of the REIQ contract, attending building and pest inspections and bank valuations, through to settlement.

"One of the key differences my agency offers is free marketing for our clients. All marketing is complimentary of VB Real Estate," Vanessa explained. "We are familiar with the media available to advertise properties and I understand how to present properties for best outcomes. We only get paid when the property sells. I think people appreciate that."

Hill change towns continue to attract record values

Home prices rise $16,000 in a single month

HINTERLAND regions are continuing to attract big demand from capital city property buyers.

For the average Nambour homeowner, the three month change in average home value to September was 6.2 percent, representing a price rise of $35,000 on the median value of $574,380. Meanwhile Yandina homeowners saw a 7.2 percent spike representing a $53,000 3-month windfall.

Maleny's Terry Ryder of Hotspotting tips that the Sunshine Coast hinterland will see strong interest in coming months, after the overheated coastal markets experienced strong growth, and some eye-watering prices, over the past two to three years.

"Now the region's hill change towns are attracting big demand," Mr Ryder said.

"The Sunshine Coast region is one of the fastest growing areas in the country over the last decade and one of the nation's most dynamic economies. The Hinterland towns like Montville and Maleny are attracting buyers out of the big cities, including buyers from Sydney and Brisbane. And they're paying big prices.

"The Sunshine Coast Hinterland is a natural beneficiary of the most powerful force impacting Australian real estate, the Exodus to Affordable Lifestyle, which has been under way for several years but has gained greater impetus during the pandemic period."

"The median house price for Montville has risen 22 percent to $865,000 in the past 12 months, while Maleny is up 22 percent to $765,000 and North Maleny up 25% to $1,200,000."

Analysts have said there was no sign of the market slowing anytime soon.

The median value of homes on the Sunshine Coast went up by more than 2 per cent in October.

For the Sunshine Coast, with its average house price of more than $830,000, that equates to about an extra $16,000 a month, or about $4000 a week.

Experts provide three factors responsible for the latest surge.

The first is the 'wealth effect', with city slickers feeling richer as their own finances increase due to rampant property price rises.

Telecommuting was the second factor, which allows for employees to work from home, thereby de-emphasising the need to travel to a nearby physical location for employment.

Affordability was the third factor, as hinterland properties tend to be priced lower than those in coastal or big city areas.

Club honours league stalwart with life membership

PALMWOODS Rugby League stalwart Norm Schleusener has been recognised for his service to the club with Life Membership.

Norm's service to Palmwoods Rugby League goes back to 1974 where he played Under 16s all the way to A-Grade.

Norm played for over 20 years and featured in the breakthrough grand final Seniors win.

"After he retired from higher grades he played for Palmwoods in the C-Grade comp & went on to help take out the Premiership in about 1991," said club spokesperson Alan Newton.

"He played a few more years then took up refereeing. He was a foundation member of the reformed juniors in 1999 where he became our second president for eight years.

"While he was president he coached juniors & refereed. From 1999 he spent 15 years with the juniors.

"He has now retired to Childers but all together spent 45 odd years in the game.

"The club is hoping to attract more people like Norm in 2022 .

"As a playing body we are hoping to take out the competition in respect for Norm's services. So glad he was finally recognised for his good work."
